theScreener integrates Inrate ESG data

Research specialist theScreener has partnered up with independent Swiss sustainability rating agency Inrate. Inrate's ESG Impact Ratings will be integrated in theScreener's investment research services.

In addition to fundamental and technical research, ESG ratings have become a key factor in decision making as well as in advising on investments. Inrate and theScreener see in the combination of both sides of research a logical next step.

Considering this, theScreener releases add-on packages for their major product lines based on Inrate's ESG Impact Ratings. The integration in the decision management tool theScreener CIO allows to filter investments based on both ESG criteria as well as fundamental and technical factors.

"Combining theScreener's proven quantitative analytics with our ESG Impact Ratings is a perfect fit in terms of both market requirements and user experience," Christoph Müller, CEO of Inrate says. "With our sustainability data as an integral part of theScreener's information offering, it becomes really easy to use ESG coherently during the whole investment process.", Müller continues.

"We are so glad to have partnered up with Inrate, our ESG partner of choice. Inrate's ratings measure both the positive and negative impacts of companies on environment and society and are of outstanding quality," says Andreas Lusser, CEO of theScreener. "The combination of Inrate's ESG data with our systematic research is what makes it so unique and powerful. In a way one might almost say groundbreaking for the entire industry.", Lusser points out.
